Summer Teen Volunteer Program

Glencliff High School Volunteers

In late April, 25 One Hundred Oaks staff members met 29 Glencliff High School Health Care Academy students to learn about health care careers while participating in a day of service. Thanks to the staff who participated! Three students were chosen from this group to pilot a summer teen volunteer program at One Hundred Oaks. These students come highly recommended by their teachers and hope to earn admittance to Vanderbilt University and other premed programs upon graduation. They serve at One Hundred Oaks once a week for eight weeks, and have truly made a difference with their hard working service.

Mina Ayad- serves as a guest ambassador mentored by Cherie Sloan/Infusion Center

Mina Adel Boshra Ayad was born in Egypt and his family is Coptic orthodox. He and his family moved to the United States for a better life, future and to find a better education for MIna and his brother. Although English is his second language, he is doing very well in school.

His interests are to be a pediatrician or a pharmacist in order to have a good future for him and his family. When he's not working in customer service, he spends his spare time playing soccer, his favorite sport. Mina is well on his way to graduate from high school with a good GPA and a good SAT/ACT score and desires to go to Vanderbilt University.

ents in Tennessee.
Until the age of 13,
Wendy grew up living in Los Angeles,
CA with her grandmother. She is interested in women's health care and has been excited to serve at the Center for Women's Health and see a clinic in operation.

Wendy will be the first in her family to graduate from High School and she plans to become a physician OB/GYN, hoping to be a role model for her younger siblings and encourage them to graduate as well. In her spare time she likes to watch emergency room television shows and read biographies of medical professionals. To the surprise of some, Chinese food is her cuisine of choice!

Paulina Vongsamphanh- Serves at the Breast Center mentored by Heather Satterfield/Robin Warren

Paulina Vongsamphanh was born and raised in Nashville, Tennessee and her family is from Laos. She loves learning about complex aspects of life, like discovering the human anatomy and observing life through medical technology, starting in the womb.

After high school, she plans on attending either Vanderbilt University or Belmont College in Applied Sciences. She hopes to become a Radiologist, working with pre-natal ultrasounds.
